== INTRODUCTION ==

As promised from my previous Alumni post - the LinkedIn ElecEng Community writeup that you may like to view.

== EMAIL EXCERPT ==

From Klara Janickova, Project Coordinator:

"Join Our LinkedIn Community!

The UNSW School of Electrical Engineering and Telecommunications is one of Australia's largest and most prestigious schools in its field.

For over 70 years, we've evolved from a teaching-focused institution into a global contributor to advancements in electrical engineering and telecommunications.

Our commitment to excellence is reflected in:
- Industry-aligned curriculum
- Cutting-edge research and innovation
- Modern labs and evolving teaching methods

This group is a space for alumni, students, academics, and industry professionals to connect, share insights, and stay updated on the latest developments in electrical engineering and telecommunications.

Shape the future of engineering with us - join us today!"

== EXTENDED AUDIENCE ==

You may be:
a) a current student or staff member from the School,
b) a graduate that has returned overseas,
c) a curious onlooker from another discipline or campus.

== STATISTICS ==

According to the School Manager, 'ElizabethGT' at our 40th reunion, the ElecEng LI Community page was started back in August 2025.

Having joined the group about 10 days ago, I counted about 40 posts covering events, awards and progams related to ElecEng. When time allows, I'll catch-up on them via the 'dusty suggestion' at the end.

There are 3 admins that monitor the posts & comments.
a) Klara Janickova - Project Coordinator
b) Elizabeth Gurung Tamang - School Manager
c) Prof. Jinhong Yuan - Head of School

This was shared from their page banner. Thank you, Klara.

== EARLIER FB PAGE ==

ElecEng started it back in 2012. Posts are still appearing on it. When I reconnected with ElecEng in 2016, I found it to be a read-only site with some clickable emoji options.

== DUSTY SUGGESTION ==

No time or missing the randomly fed posts on the social pages? The following may be obvious to you.

Tag them as a bookmark in your different browsers or an icon on the home screen and launch them when you have a window of time.

It developed from my batch files pointing to remote places on the Unix system in the early 1980's. The system dictionary, w2006, had a tricky path to type out - "/usr/lib/dict/"?
